Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

1. All outstanding rejections are withdrawn in light of applicant's amendment filed 11/3/2005.
2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior office action.
3. New grounds of rejection, in response to applicant's deletion of all abrasive particles other than silicon carbide, are set forth below. Thus, a 2nd non-final Office action is set forth as follows.

Claim Objections

4. Claim 2 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form, or rewrite the claim(s) in independent form. In particular, silicon carbide has a Mohs hardness of 9 and therefore the scope of claim 2 is broader than claim 1 since silicon carbide does not have a Mohs hardness of "6 or more," only 9. See the attached Hawley's Condensed Chemical Dictionary excerpt as evidence for the Mohs hardness of silicon carbide.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. Claims 1, 2, and 4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brewer (US 5,856,278) in view of Hiles (US 4,049,396).

Brewer discloses a friction material comprising 5-80 vol. % abrasive such as alumina having a particle size of 1-10 microns (col. 1, lines 46-47); 5-40 vol. % cured organic resin/rubber (e.g., nitrile rubber) binder; and a fibrous base (col. 1, lines 37-50). Note Examples 1 and 2 in col. 2 where solvated NBR (i.e., the unvulcanized rubber of the binder) is present in an amount of 15 vol. %. While the binder is cured, it is not vulcanized and therefore the solvated NBR reads on the instant claims. Although Brewer discloses the unvulcanized rubber as part of the binder component and the presently claimed invention has the unvulcanized rubber as part of the filler (C) component, it is the examiner's position that once the ingredients are mixed together to form the friction material, the distinction between the components becomes unnecessary since the final product is the same regardless of the description of the components before mixing.

Brewer fails to disclose abrasive particles other than alumina or rubber other than NBR.

With respect to silicon carbide abrasive particles, Hiles discloses a friction or abrasive composition for brake pads (like Brewer) (col. 7, line 15) which comprises abrasive particles such as aluminum oxide and silicon carbide (col. 8, lines 23-27).

In view of Hiles's recognition that aluminum oxide and silicon carbide are equivalent and interchangeable in friction or abrasive compositions, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute silicon carbide with aluminum oxide and thereby arrive at the presently claimed invention. Case law holds that the mere substitution of an equivalent (something equal in value or meaning, as taught by analogous prior art) is not an act of invention; where equivalency is known to the prior art, the substitution of one equivalent for another is not patentable. See In re Ruff 118 USPQ 343 (CCPA 1958).

With respect to other types of rubber (i.e., claim 4), while Brewer exemplifies NBR and nitrile rubbers, Brewer is clearly open to other suitable conventional rubbers (col. 3, lines 13-14), including those presently claimed. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to utilize other conventional rubbers with an expectation of comparable results, absent evidence to the contrary, and thereby arrive at present claim 4.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
